VOICE OF THE KNIGHTS

Volume 62 | Wartburg College, Waverly, Iowa, Saturday, Jan. 11, 1969 | Number 15

'Games People Play' Is Jan. Convo Topic

"Games People Play" is the title of a series of convocations which will be presented during the month of January. The first in this series will be on Jan. 13 at 10 a.m. in the Neumann Chapel-auditorium, according to Pastor Herman Diers, chairman of the Convocations Committee.

The title of Monday's convo is "Game Patterns." Lewis "Buzz" Levick, Wartburg basketball coach, will speak in terms of the pattern styles of basketball.

Levick will be explaining some of the basketball plays aided by a few film clips from some previous games. There will also be demonstrations by some of the basketball players.

Also on the agenda is special recognition of the Wartburg Knight basketball team for its winning the Lutheran Welfare Tourney in Chicago over the Christmas holiday.

The Knights won the tourney for the third straight year, beating Carthage in the opener, 97-81, and Luther in the championship, 87-53.

There is a two-pronged thrust to this convo, according to Pastor Diers. One is to provide the students with a better understanding of basketball so that they can better appreciate the moves and science of the game in the future. The second is to introduce game patterns, since the other convos during January will show how such patterns affect man's daily life.

Such game patterns are evident in interpersonal relationships, in the way nations conduct war and in the relationships between the rich and the poor.

The title "Games People Play" was taken from Eric Berne's book by the same title.

8 Teachers Join Faculty

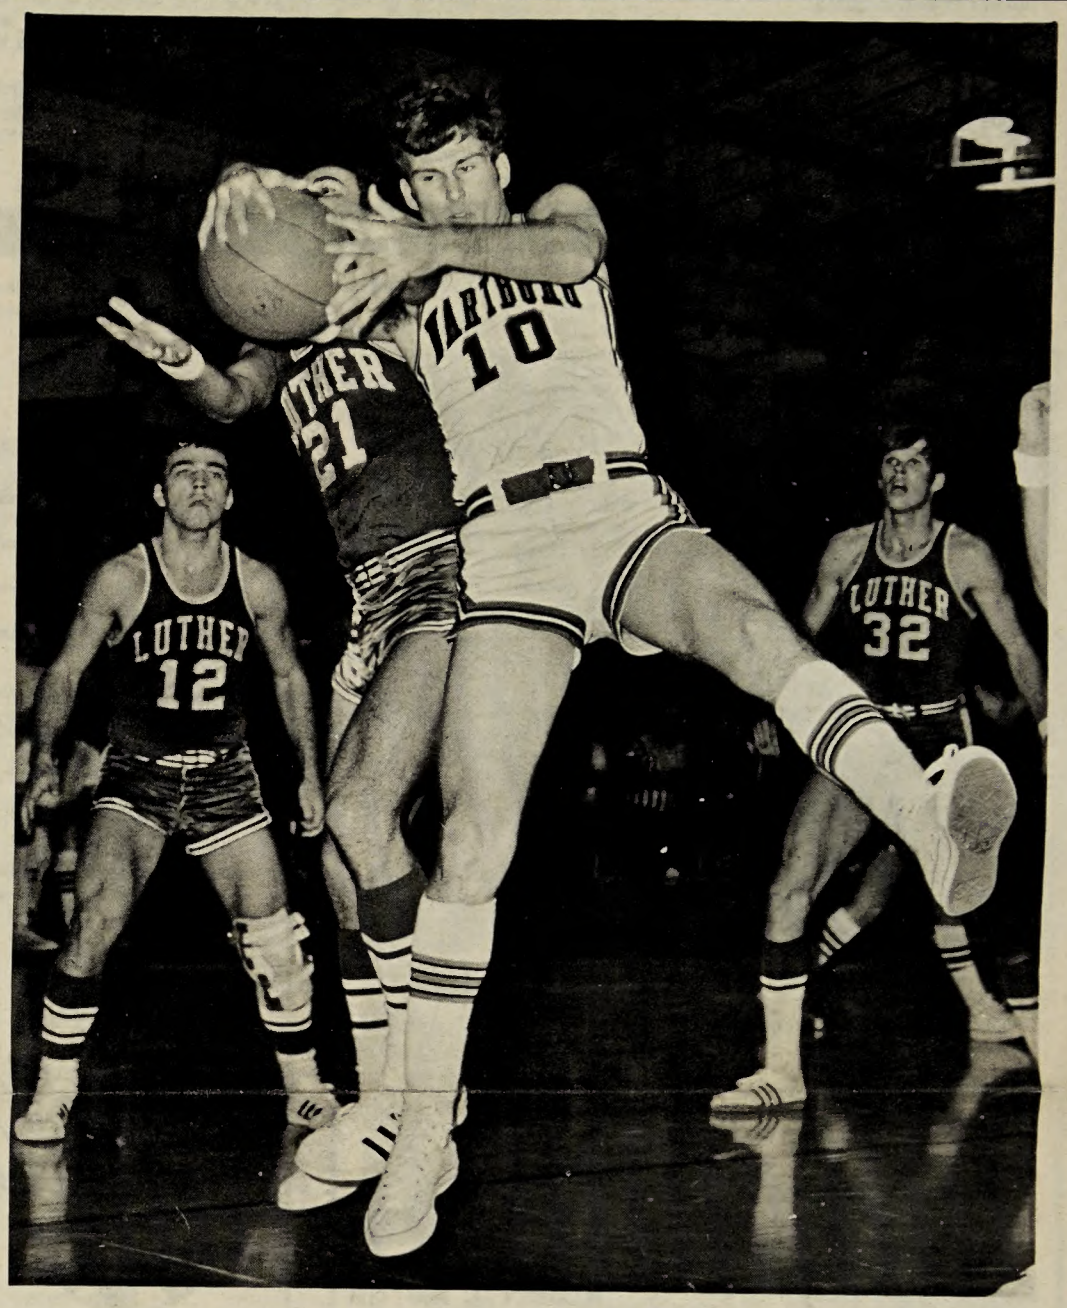
Eight new teachers have joined the Wartburg faculty during the Winter and May Terms.

The list includes the following: Miss Barbara Beckmann, English instructor, B. A., University of Nebraska, M. A., University of Chicago; Miss Cora Ebert, assistant professor of education (part-time), B. A., Iowa State Teachers College, M. A., Columbia University. Miss Ebert has taught here before, either full-time or part-time.

Robert Clark, assistant professor of geography (part-time), B. A., Oklahoma State University, M. A., University of Oklahoma; Lowell Goodman, instructor in geography (part-time), Ph. D., University of North Dakota, M. S., University of North Dakota.

John G. Koelzer, instructor in mathematics, B. A., Aquinas College, M. S., University of Iowa; Ronald Rockwell, instructor in German, B. A., University of Montana, M. A., Middlebury College.

James A. Woltz, assistant instructor in biology (part-time), B. A., University of Northern Iowa.



Sophomore Paul Bruns wrests the ball from a Luther opponent in the final game of the Lutheran Welfare Tournament. Several members of Wartburg's third-time champion team will assist Coach Lewis "Buzz" Levick at the first convo of the term, which will deal with "Game Patterns."

Chastity Declines In Value

(ACP) College students are placing less emphasis on chastity in selecting a mate than they did 28 years ago, according to University sociologists Dr. John W. Hudson and Mrs. Lura Henze.

In a survey entitled "Campus Values in Mate Selections," 566 students from four universities, including the University, were asked to rank 18 characteristics they seek in a mate.

Chastity has declined from 10th place in 1939 to 15th in 1967. Hudson said that the decline doesn't mean that it is less important; rather, it may be that other attributes have become more meaningful since 1939.

The top five characteristics that men want in a mate are dependable character, mutual attraction, emotional stability, pleasing disposition and desire for home and children.

The top five characteristics that the women looked for in a man are emotional stability, dependable character, mutual attraction, pleasing disposition and a desire for home and children.

Relocate Offices For Renovation

Because their offices are undergoing renovation, several members of the administration have been temporarily relocated.

Pres. John W. Bachman now has his office in Luther Hall 215; Dean of Faculty Mahlon H. Hellerich is in the Faculty Lounge; Registrar Mattie K. Harms is in Luther Hall 216: and Faculty Secretary Margaret Swanson is in the office of Donald Vetter, Luther Hall 301A.

Until completion of the renovation, Dr. Bachman's phone number will be 261, and Mrs. Swanson's will be 280.

Grad Exams To Be Given

The Graduate Record Examination will be given to all May and August graduates all day on Tuesday, Feb. 4, and on the afternoon of Feb. 5. Seniors participating in this program will be excused from classes on these dates.

The Whisperers Will Be Shown

The Whisperers will be shown January 15 at the Waverly Theatre as part of the Waverly-Wartburg Art Film Series, according to Mrs. Margaret Coddington of the speech department.

Dame Edith Evans portrays a 76-year-old mentally foggy and unlovely to behold Margaret Ross in the film, says Mrs. Coddington.

Mrs. Ross' principal companions are voices that whisper to her and who share her squalid flat. Every time she returns from her usual day of wandering about sordid alleys, cold libraries and revival meetings, she asks, "Are you there?"

Based on a novel by Robert Nicholson, The Whisperers was written for screen and directed by Byron Forbes.

'Hell' Of War Will Be Shown In Two Great Issues Movies

Two special films will be shown as part of the Great Issues Course on War and Peace. Everyone is invited to see the films in the Neumann Chapel-auditorium on Thursday, Jan. 16, at 7 p.m., and on Saturday, Jan. 18, at 8 p.m., according to Dr. Robert T. Dell, faculty coordinator of the course.

The first is a 47-minute documentary entitled "The War Game," which portrays in graphic terms the effects of a hydrogen bomb attack on England.

Written and directed by Peter Watkins for B. B. C. television, "The War Game" is an attempt to convey to naive and sleepy people what nuclear war could mean should World War III break out by accident or design.

This film makes clear how foolish it is to talk about civil defense and survival following an atomic attack. With hand-held camera technique, Watkins documents a frightening, hard-hitting film which portrays the hellishness of war, particularly the nuclear kind.

The other film, entitled "The Anderson Platoon," is a straightforward visual record of a Marine Platoon caught in the "hell" of conventional warfare in Vietnam. The film is not designed as anti-war propaganda, but enables the viewer to see war as it appears to the men caught up in it.

What is it like to be fighting, struggling, dying in a war in Vietnam? What does one see, hear and experience in a situation like this? "The Anderson Platoon," like "A Face of War," confronts the viewer with the experience of soldiers on the front lines of battle.

Series Tickets To Be Available

Student tickets for the Iowa String Quartet concert, the fourth number of this year's Artist Series, will be available next Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 15 and 16, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Neumann Chapel-auditorium box office.

The world - famous quartet, which has performed in London, Berlin, Tokyo and other cities abroad in addition to numerous places in the United States, will perform here Sunday evening, Feb. 2, at 8:00 in Neumann Chapel-auditorium.

Students holding college activity tickets can obtain a concert ticket without charge by presenting their activity ticket at the box office.

Book Sale Is In Progress

Student Senate Used Book Sale is being held in the Auxiliary Conference Room of the Student Union, according to Student Services Commissioner Lynn Schlessman.

The book sale, held at the beginning of the Fall and Winter Terms, enables students to sell old textbooks to other students.

"When the books are turned in, the students will be charged 10 cents for each book," Schlessman explained. "Then, if the book is sold, we will keep the 10 cents to cover expenses, but if it is not sold, the student will get back his dime."

Students set their own prices for the books. If the prospective buyer is not willing to pay the set price, the volume will not be sold.

"Unsold books must be picked up by the owner by Jan. 16 at 6:30 p.m. or it cannot be claimed," Schlessman continued.

All books must be submitted for sale by Jan. 14.

Booksale hours are 11 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. and 5 to 6:30 p.m. The sale ends Jan. 16.

Hong Kong Flu Has Flown

Relax, students, if you're worried about a possible epidemic of the Hong Kong flu this term. Dr. Herbert Rathe of Rohlf Memorial Clinic says that such an outbreak is very "doubtful" since the disease has apparently reached its climax in Iowa. Most students will already have been exposed over the Christmas holiday or have contracted and recovered from the disease so that the threat is now minimal.

16 Flu Varieties

If some students do become ill with a cold, fever or chills, it will probably not be the Hong Kong variety. There are 16 kinds of flu virus going around so that the chances to its being the A2 viral strain are slight.

The Hong Kong flu, among healthy persons, is no more dangerous than other types of influenza virus. However, it is considerably more dangerous to persons with poor health or the aged.

2 Students Suffer

Only one or two Wartburg students were believed to have contracted the disease before the holiday vacation, and one faculty member and another faculty member's wife suffered from the Hong Kong flu during the vacation.

The problem need not concern Wartburgers to the extent it did Luther College, however, where final exams were cancelled because of a Hong Kong flu epidemic. Lucky people!

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"CLASS, I'D LIKE TO ANNOUNCE A CHANGE IN THE SEATING ARRANGEMENT."

By Paul Nelson

On Senate

'Revolutions' Are Made

As this is the first issue of the new year and kind of a second beginning for all of us in the school year, it might be appropriate to suggest some of the new year's resolutions (or revolutions, as I have heard them called) that some people might have made.

Ron Hall: I resolve to hold Senate meetings on a more regular basis (at least twice a month) and to inform the members of the senate well in advance (preferably one day, but if that is not possible, at least one hour).

I resolve to be on time and not to oversleep any more of the meetings when they are scheduled. And I resolve to continue to improve my bridge game.

Some senate members: I resolve to continue to faithfully report to my constituents on the progress of the senate and I resolve to maintain my enthusiasm for the rest of the year.

The honest senate members: I resolve to begin to report to my constituents on the progress of the senate and I resolve to try and build some enthusiasm for the rest of the year.

Campus crew: We resolve to use a bit more sand and salt on the few icy spots on the sidewalks and steps. We also resolve to start the snow removal a few minutes earlier so that there is not snow on the sidewalk deep enough to cover a pair of eight-inch Wellingtons.

Knights Take Sole Possession Of First With Convincing 66-49 Win Over Central

By DAVE WESTPHAL

Wartburg kept its perfect record intact last night as the Knights walloped highly-regarded Central, 66-49. Wartburg pushed its season record to 11-0, and jumped to 4-0 in the Iowa Conference.

G. E. Buenning led the way with 15 points and 10 rebounds. Tom Manchester added 14 tallies, Jim Barkema scored 10 and Cliff Cornelius had 9 points and 13 rebounds.

Knight Basketball

Although the Central victory is an important feather in the Knights' hat, the defending IIAC champions cannot afford a letdown tonight against Simpson.

Simpson is a vastly improved club over several seasons ago, when it was a shoe-in for the bottom spot in the league, and is tied with Dubuque and Central for second place in the loop with a 3-1 record, which includes wins over Upper Iowa, Luther and Buena Vista.

Rod Ritenour, an all-league selection from a year ago, leads the Redmen, who have been strengthened with the addition of two players--Rick Burton, a junior college transfer, and Jim King, a freshman.

The Knights used a big offensive spurt midway through the first half which saw Wartburg score 16 points to Central's 2 to gain a decisive margin at halftime, 38-23.

Coach "Buzz" Levick explained, "The first 15 minutes of the first half we played extremely well, both offensively and defensively. But the last five minutes of the half we threw away our chance to run away with the game by committing senseless fouls."

The Knights were in moderate foul trouble at halftime with Buenning, Barkema and Manchester tabbed with three personals.

Meet Zone Defense

The second half saw the Knights improve their margin by only two points as the Dutchmen slapped a zone defense and a full court zone press on the Knights, which obviously bothered the IIAC front-runners.

"There is no question that we will see more of the zone and the zone press when we play Central down at Pella," said Levick. "We didn't look at all smooth, and we had trouble setting up offensively."

Levick saw the key of the game in Central's inability to hit from the outside, which put pressure on the Dutchmen's front line. Central's two starting guards combined for only five points.

Wartburg's defense, which earlier this week was declared the nation's leader in NAIA competition, was in top form, limiting the Dutchmen to just 49 points.

The Central victory not only put the Knights alone in first place in the Iowa Conference, but gave the Knights victories over both contending threats in the loop this year--Central and Dubuque.

Win, 64-57

The Knights squeaked out a 64-57 victory over the Spartans at Dubuque last Friday after the game was knotted at 57-all.

Tom Manchester was the hero of that game, scoring 20 points, and hitting the go-ahead basket when the game was tied with 3 minutes to go. Buenning added 18 points in that game.

Wartburg never led during the first half, and the lead changed or the game was tied 23 times in the second half.

The following night Wartburg had little trouble in blasting William Penn, 71-46. Buenning hit 16, Cornelius and Manchester had 13 and Erickson added 10.

Wartburg's freshman squad had little trouble in disposing of Central's frosh in the preliminary game last night, 104-79.

Wartburg Grabs 3rd Welfare Title

By LES GYLLSTROM

The Wartburg Knights made it three straight as they successfully defended their Lutheran Welfare Tournament Crown in Chicago.

Since its beginning in 1966, the Knights have been champions all three years, and show no signs of letting up.

In the opening contests Luther faced a talented team from Michigan Lutheran and edged it by 104-100. The game was loosely played and there was no sign of defense on either team's part.

Wartburg faced Carthage in the opener and had no trouble in handling the Redmen from Kenosha, Wis.

Buenning Hits 29

G. E. Buenning led the Knights with 29 points, and, according to Levick, he played his best game of the year. The Knights were never in any real serious trouble, though they did run into a little foul trouble in the second half. The final score was 97-81.

The next night saw Wartburg and Luther, old rivals, playing in a rematch from the year before.

Once again Buenning, who was voted the tournament's most valuable player, was hot as he pumped in 26 points, and led the Knights to an impressive 87-53 win over the Norse.

Levick was extremely pleased with his cagers' performance, and felt that the team had come a long way in these games.

"We shot extremely well, and I would say that we are better defensively now than we were last year at this time," commented Levick.

Levick, of course, was pleased with his junior forward G. E. Buenning, and was sure that Buenning is developing both offensively and defensively into a top player.

Levick, however, was rather disappointed that junior guard Virgil Erickson was not selected on the All-Tournament team.

Scores 21 Points

Virg scored 21 points in the championship game against Luther, and has turned in an excellent job defensively. Against Carthage Virg guarded its top man and held him to just four points in the first half.

He, along with Cornelius, contained him to just 14 points for the game.

Levick felt that the reason why Erickson wasn't picked was the fact that two of the coaches voted before the championship game, because they were leaving and didn't see the game.

"The same sort of thing happened last year," commented Levick. "But there really isn't anything that can be done about it."

The selections for the All-Tournament team were Buenning and Manchester of Wartburg, Frank Barth and Rolf Wolfsburg of Luther and Eddie Jenkins of Michigan Lutheran.

Jenkins, a 6'6" forward, broke many of the tournament scoring records, including most points in a game, 38, and most in a tournament, 68.

Out On A Limb

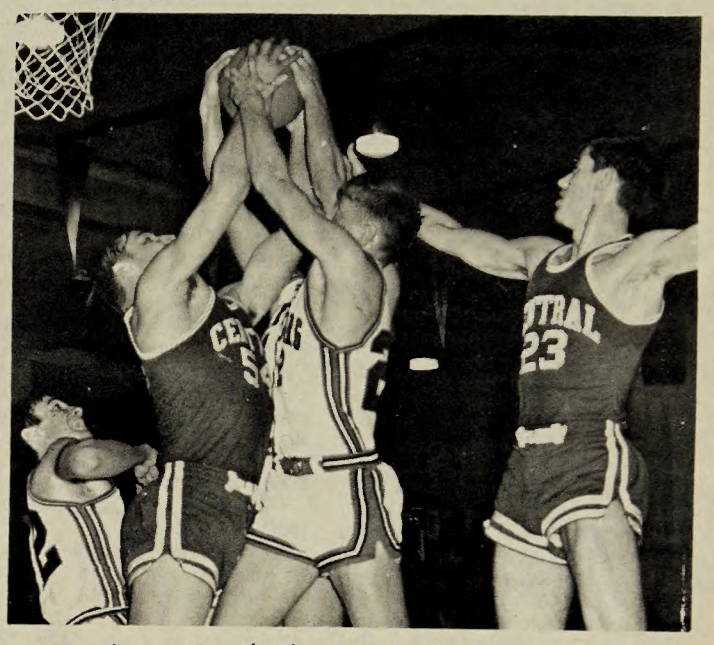
Bob Olson, offensive tackle for this year's conference-winning football team, was named to the first NAIA All-American team. He is the first Wartburg player ever to be chosen for this honor. Bob, who is 6-3 and weighs 220 pounds, was chosen at offensive tackle, but also played defensive end for the Wartburg Knights this year. It was said that they ran 75 per cent of their offensive plays to his side of the field. He also made many second and third efforts to make other blocks after he had taken his initial man out of the play.

Keifer

Bob was also chosen for the All-Conference team, the All NAIA District 15 team, and All NCAA District 5 First Team. NAIA honors are chosen by the NAIA Coaches Association.

Coach Bondhus earlier this season said that Bob had a bright future, but hadn't lived up to his potential. Obviously, he did this season. He was one of the leaders who helped out the younger players to change to college football.

This is indeed a great honor for Bob and Wartburg College, and let's hope there are more players in the future who receive All-American honors.



Action under the boards was furious last night as Wartburg's sticky defense and sharp-shooting overcame Central's Flying Dutchmen, 66-49.

Senior Berg Devotes Time To Working With Snakes

By MARK BECKER

It seems that to most people the word snake is synonymous with something to be feared. However, to senior Tom Berg, it is an interest, an interest which he has held most of his life.

Berg first began working with snakes in college when his Biological Techniques class needed snakes to plasticize, a new technique for preserving specimens.

One of the main purposes now in his working with the snakes is to develop the carbo-wax technique of preserving. In this technique, the snake, after being killed, is injected with formaldehyde, after which it is soaked in formaldehyde for 48 hours.

Plaster of paris is then injected into the snake and when it is hardened, the snake is set in wax. This keeps it from decomposing and allows the snake to be studied, without having to bother with the preservative formaldehyde.

Once while injecting a rattlesnake with formaldehyde, Berg evidently hit a nerve and the snake's head and tail raised up and began rattling. He said this is about the biggest scare he has had, because he said that he was almost sure the snake was dead.

As it turned out the snake was dead, but still this would be about enough to make anyone think twice.

Prepares Paper

As an independent study, Berg is doing a paper on the snakes of Iowa, which he will hand in at the end of this term to be filed with the Biology department as a reference. He has been snake hunting in various parts of Iowa for his project and has had many interesting experiences.

He also plans a trip this spring hunting for some of the larger rattlesnakes, timber rattlers. He said that this makes him kind of nervous because some of these get five feet long and can strike easier. The shorter snakes cannot reach you quite as easily.

While hunting snakes, Berg and junior Robb Anderson, who usually goes with him, wear waist-high hip boots. Out of the 28 species found in Iowa, they have found nine. Around here he has hunted in Sweet's Marsh near Tripoli and has come up with three pigmy rattlesnakes.

He said, "It is all right if you see the rattler first, but they are hard to see because they are so well camouflaged."

He found his first rattlesnake in a hole where he had dropped his glasses. Luckily he wasn't bitten because of the snake's warning.

Carry Snake In Bag

When they catch a snake they put it in a bag which they usually carry at the end of a pole, especially if the snake is poisonous.

Berg said that a rattler can strike with accuracy even if it is blind because they strike by sensing infra-red heat which every living thing that produces heat gives.

He also said that they used to carry the snakes in a gunny sack until they learned that a snake can escape from this by simply nudging his nose through and contracting his muscles.

On at least one night Berg has brought his work home with him. Upon returning home with a rattlesnake he discovered that the science hall was locked up. Since it was too cold, he therefore took the snake home and kept it in his wife's kitchen sink.

"That wasn't appreciated very much," he claimed.

One snake Berg has caught which looks very much like a rattler and even rustles its tail in the grass to make a sound similar to a rattler's is a fox snake. This snake is about three feet long and is two inches short of the record for its kind.

"This snake," he claims, "has become tame with handling. It will crawl right up into your hand. What really amazes me is that when you put him in the grass he will coil up, rustle his tail, and become wild again." It seems that the snake's habitat governs his behavior.

Doesn't Go Broke

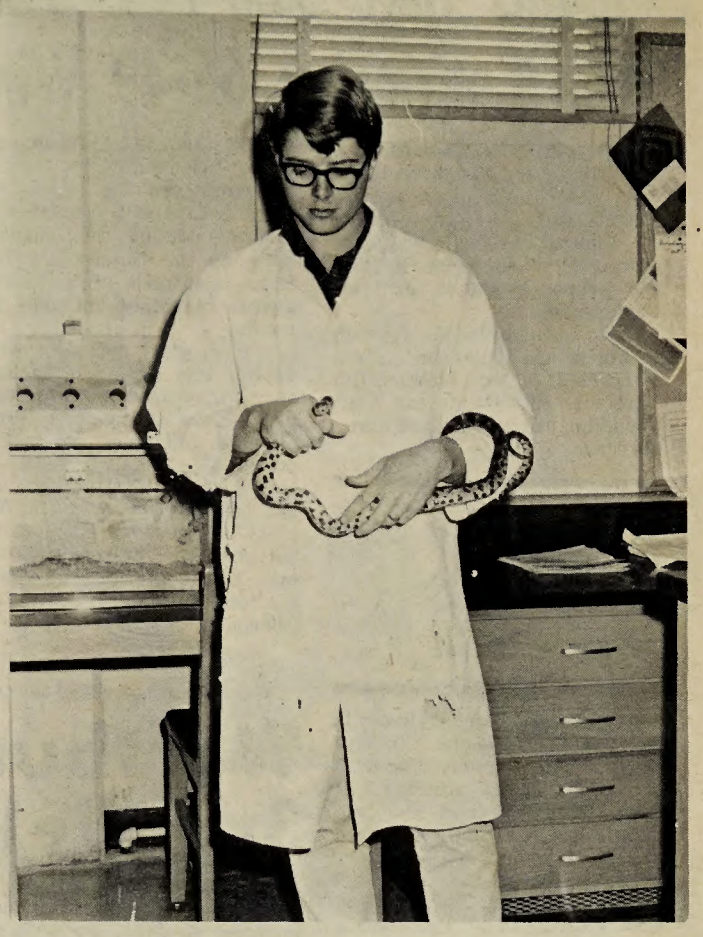
One certainly does not go broke feeding such a snake, either. The fox snake may eat once in four months. (They do drink a lot of water, however.)

When the fox snake sees a potential dinner he will coil around it and squeeze until the victim's heart can no longer beat. He will then dislocate his jaw and literally crawl around it. He will then sleep about a week and when he awakes he will regurgitate the bones, hair and anything else he cannot digest.

Berg feeds his snakes mainly mice and frogs. However, like the fox snake, most of the other snakes do not eat much. He says that he has one snake which hasn't eaten since he got it in September.

Berg evidently enjoys his work very much and has come to appreciate the snake as an animal of value. He said it makes him angry when fishermen kill so many snakes because most snakes are beneficial.

"Fishermen see a snake, think it is a rattler and chop its head off. Most snakes will not hurt you and the harmless ones get rid of pests such as mosquitoes, rats and mice."



Senior Tom Berg holds one of his pets, a fox snake. Berg commented that this particular snake is two inches short of being record length.

Krinkle's Korners

I didn't know there was a Trumpet this week, either. I didn't have time to write the column I wanted to write, so this week you intellectuals will have to suffer through filthy jokes and poetry. Don't cheer too hard, you intellectuals. I will also interject a few nice thoughts so those who must judge will become confused.

* * *

Rumor of the week: Ray "Deuce" Narducy is living with a woman in an off-campus apartment. Ray would want me to mention that he was married Dec. 29.

I got stuck in Cedar Falls Thursday morning, and I was rocking my car back and forth with no success. Many white people walked by my car, but it was a black man who finally came to help me. A white man saw him and gave him a hand. One push and I was out of the snow bank.

Mary had a little lamb,
It was white from head to toe;
This really rattled Mary--
She was on birth control.

* * *

"Yeah, I learned to drive in San Francisco," senior Jim Baseler told me once as he sat in the Den eating a "Frisco brownie."

"Did you ever have any close calls?" I inquired.

"Only one," he recalled. "I was in the middle lane of a five-lane highway, and the light turned red. I lined up with four other cars and noticed that they wanted to drag race."

"Did that bother you?" I queried.

"Nope," he replied. "At least not until I looked in my rear view mirror and noticed that the Corvette behind me was also participating."

* * *

There was a young lady from Vollmer,
Who studied to become an embalmer;
"Let it never be said,
"I don't care for the dead,
"I find them much cooler and calmer."

* * *

I had business in Denver last week, and I took my faithful chauffeur, valet, domestic servant and sidekick--mainly Jim Bahns--with me. We stayed at Jim Baseler's house and had a pretty good time. The last night, however, we made the mistake of going to a cheap burlesque show. I didn't think the show would affect me one way or the other. It didn't, either, at least until one dancer came onto the stage.

She was old, ugly and fat, but this isn't what really turned me off. It was her eyes. They were dark and sinister and evil looking. But as I looked closer at them, I could see an almost indescribable sadness in them. She had probably spent most of her life appealing to the physical senses of a multitude of men. She tried her charms desperately that night, but no one showed interest in her. I think she sensed that. She must have known that she didn't have much time left before the agent would take her off the line. I was wondering, as I watched her, what she would have left.

I think she was wondering, too.

It was really sad.

Decisions! Decisions!

One of them should be a buying decision

As a college student, you learn to make decisions. One of the most important should concern life insurance . . . from Aid Association for Lutherans. AAL is a fraternalife insurance society for Lutherans . . . and that's a big advantage to the Lutheran student.

When it comes to life insurance, Lutheran college students get a bargain. That's because of age and good health, and because AAL's rates are low to begin with.

Another reason . . . Lutheran students can have certain guaranteed purchase options that assure them of being able to buy additional insurance later on regardless of health.

AAL representatives (who are Lutheran) serve all 50 states and five provinces of Canada . . . we're the largest fraternal life insurance society in America.

Take time to talk to an AAL representative soon. Let him show you the advantages of starting a life insurance plan at your present age. And have him show you how dollars saved with AAL do double-duty . . . provide protection for you while helping support Lutheran benevolent causes.
